

CERAMICS 2004

IMAPS, The CII and ACerS are pleased to announce that the 2004 Conference on Ceramic Interconnect Technology will be held in Denver, CO, April 27 & 28, 2004.

Ceramic Interconnect Technology has a long history of meeting the requirements of the most demanding applications. The growth of wireless communications to its current pervasive position in both developed and developing nations and extending from microwave to millimeter wave continues to create a host of opportunities for which ceramic technology is enabling. At the same time, demand for bandwidth driven by the Internet and data communications has sparked increased need for optical communication equipment and many new interconnect and packaging applications for performance at 40 Gb/sec and beyond. Ceramic is uniquely suited for these applications as well.

The conference will once again have a renowned group of speakers representing leading global industrial, academic and government laboratories presenting up-to-the-minute developments across the spectrum of ceramics applications.

Additionally, IMAPS will hold a focused exhibition for suppliers who support the use of optoelectronics technology.

This venue features an ideal atmosphere to showcase your products and services to key decision-making industry professionals.

There is limited exhibit space, which has sold out for two straight years. Sign-up early to guarantee a spot and $ave money.
