

CICMT 2005

IMAPS and ACerS are co-sponsoring the International Conference on Ceramic Interconnect and Ceramic Microsystems technologies(CICMT).

This partnership between IMAPS and ACerS combines the applications, development, and marketing strengths of the IMAPS membership, with the fundamental materials and process development strengths of the ACerS membership to focus on two of the fastest growing areas of ceramic technology. Three-dimensional ceramic structures such as those enabled by low temperature co-fired ceramic materials and processes together with embedded components and functional integration, have created new generations of miniaturized, wireless, devices.

By combining the strengths of their global communities, IMAPS and ACerS expect to accelerate the development and use of ceramic interconnect and ceramic microsystems technology. The conference will once again have a renowned group of speakers representing leading global industrial, academic and government laboratories presenting up-to-the-minute developments across the spectrum of ceramics applications.

Additionally, IMAPS will hold a focused exhibition for suppliers who support the use of this technology. There is limited exhibit space -- which has sold out for the past three years.
